

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

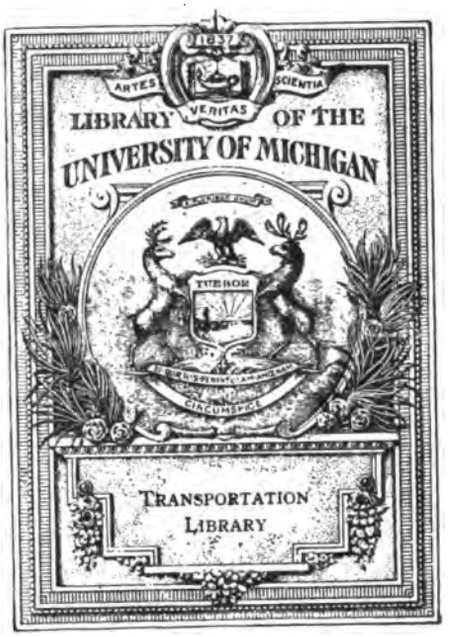
+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.

+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.

+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.

+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search



Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. EXPLANATIONS OF GENERAL TABLES.

General imports.—Tables Nos. 3, 4, and 5 embrace imported articles entered at the custom-houses for immediate consumption and imported articles entered for warehouse. The statements of imports entered for consumption, Table No. 15, embrace imported articles entered for immediate consumption and imported articles withdrawn from warehouse for consumption. The statement of general imports and the statement of imports entered for consumption for any period will always differ to the extent that the value of entries for warehouse for the period differs from the value of withdrawals from warehouse for consumption. The term "entry for consumption" is the technical name of the import entry made at the custom-house, and does not imply that the goods have been actually consumed, but simply that they have been delivered into the custody of the importer and that the duties have been paid on the dutiable portion.

Import values.—The values or prices of articles imported since August 1, 1890, are governed by the provisions of section 19 of the act of June 10, 1890, which prescribes that the values of imported merchandise subject to ad valorem rates of duty shall be "the actual market value or wholesale price of such merchandise as bought and sold in usual wholesale quantities at the time of exportation to the United States in the principal markets of the country from whence imported, and in the condition in which such merchandise is there bought for exportation to the United States or consigned to the United States for sale, including the value of all cartons, cases, crates, boxes, sacks, and coverings of any kind, and all other costs, charges, and expenses incident to placing the merchandise in condition ready for shipment to the United States."

Domestic export values.—Tables Nos. 6, 7, and 8 exhibit the exports of domestic products or manufactures, also exports of commodities of foreign origin which have been changed from the form in which they were imported, or enhanced in value by further manufacture in the United States, such as sugar refined in this country from imported raw sugar, flour ground from imported wheat, and articles and utensils made from imported metals, etc. The value of exports of domestic merchandise is their value at the time of exportation in the ports of the United States whence they are exported.

Foreign export values.—Tables Nos. 9, 10, and 11, called "foreign exports," or "reexports," exhibit exports of foreign merchandise which had been imported. The value of such commodities exported "from warehouse" is their import value. The value of such commodities exported "not from warehouse," comprising free goods mainly, is the value at the ports of the United States whence they are exported.

Values of foreign merchandise in transit or transhipped.—Table No. 12 exhibits foreign merchandise brought to the United States for immediate transit across the territory of the United States to a foreign country, or for transhipment in the ports of the United States to a foreign country. The value of the commodities returned in this table is similar to that of imports.

Values of warehoused merchandise.—Table No. 13 exhibits imported merchandise in warehouse. This merchandise has already appeared in the statement of general imports, Tables Nos. 3, 4, and 5, for the year in which it was imported. The official values of the articles therein represented are the same as the import values.

Tonnage tables.—In the tables of the foreign tonnage movement the tonnage is stated in net tons of 100 cubic feet internal carrying capacity.

ANNUAL REVIEW

OF THE

FOREIGN COMMERCE OF THE UNITED STATES

FOR

THE YEAR ENDING JUNE 30, 1903.

LETTER OF TRANSMITTAL.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, BUREAU OF STATISTICS,
Washington, D. C., August 1, 1903.

SIR: I have the honor to submit to you, in accordance with the requirements of section 336 of the Revised Statutes, the following report upon the foreign commerce of the United States for the year ending June 30, 1903.

Very respectfully,

O. P. AUSTIN,
Chief of Bureau.

Hon. LESLIE M. SHAW,
Secretary of the Treasury.

ANNUAL REVIEW OF FOREIGN COMMERCE OF UNITED STATES, 1903.

The foreign commerce of the United States in the fiscal year 1903 was the largest in the history of the country. The imports and exports combined aggregated $2,445,860,916, against $2,285,040,349 in 1902, $2,310,937,156 in 1901, and $2,244,424,266 in 1900. Prior to 1900 the aggregate of imports and exports had never reached two billions, and it was not until 1872 that the aggregate of imports and exports reached as much as one billion dollars.

ANALYSIS OF THE COMMERCE OF 1903, COMPARED WITH PRECEDING YEARS.

An especially striking feature of the foreign commerce of the year was a large increase in imports. Exports grew from $1,381,719,401 in 1902 to $1,420,141,679 in 1903, an increase of $38,422,278; imports grew from $903,320,948 in 1902 to $1,025,719,237 in 1903, an increase of $122,398,289. The total of imports in 1903 for the first time exceeded one billion dollars. The increase was chiefly in materials for use in manufacturing.

EXPORTS OF THE YEAR.

In exports agricultural products show an increase of $21,857,260, the total for 1903 being $873,322,882, against $851,465,622 in 1902; manufactures show an increase of $3,884,758, being $407,526,159 in 1903, against $403,641,401 in 1902; the products of the forest show an increase of $9,647,235, being for the year $57,835,896, against $48,188,661 in 1902. Agricultural exports were greater in value than in any preceding year except 1901, and manufactures were greater in value than in any preceding year except 1900 and 1901. The total value of manufactures exported falls $3,406,365 below that of 1901, and $26,325,597 below that of 1900.

This reduction in the exports of manufactures is evidently due to the increased home demand, since the records of domestic production in all the great articles entering into manufacturing and the activities in the various manufacturing industries indicate a greater home production of manufactures in the fiscal year 1903 than in any preceding year. The production of pig iron—a measure of activity in manufacturing—was, in the calendar year 1902, 17,821,307 tons, against 15,878,354 tons in 1901 and 13,782,242 tons in 1900, while in other lines of manufacturing and the production of the great articles used in manufacturing the records of the year indicated a greater activity than in any preceding year. The further fact that importations of materials for use in manufacturing in the fiscal year 1903 were much greater than in any preceding year indicates that the production of manufactures was much greater than in any former year, and the slight reduction in exports, therefore, is due to increased home consumption and not to any reduction of activity in the manufacturing industries.

The tables which follow present an analysis of the foreign commerce of the United States in 1903 compared with preceding years, viz:

IMPORTS FOR CONSUMPTION.

The following table summarizes, by groups, and according to the material and uses, the imports for consumption from 1900 to 1903.

IMPORTS OF MANUFACTURERS' MATERIALS.

The tables which follow show the importation of articles for use in manufacturing in 1903 compared with earlier years, showing, where practicable, quantities as well as values. It will be seen that while the figures of value show a marked increase in practically all cases, those of quantities show in many cases a much greater increase, owing to the fact that prices are in many cases much less than in earlier years.

IMPORTS FOR CONSUMPTION OF PRINCIPAL ARTICLES INCLUDED IN THE CLASS "ARTICLES IN A CRUDE CONDITION WHICH ENTER INTO THE VARIOUS PROCESSES OF DOMESTIC INDUSTRY," AT QUINQUENNIAL PERIODS FROM 1880 TO 1900, AND IN 1901, 1902, AND 1903.

The value of "articles in a crude condition which enter into the various processes of domestic industry" imported in the fiscal year 1903 was $383,634,293, against $328,506,597 in 1902, the year of the largest imports of this class of materials prior to 1903. The increase in importation of "articles in a crude condition for use in manufacturing" has been very rapid in recent years. Prior to 1893 the total of this class of importations had never reached as much as $200,000,000, and had never reached $300,000,000 until 1902, when the total, as above indicated, was $328,506,597. In 1903 the total was $383,634,293, an increase of $55,127,696 over 1902. The "articles wholly or partially manufactured for use as materials in the manufactures and mechanic arts" in 1903 also show a considerable increase over any preceding year, the total being $97,194,093, against $86,645,277 in 1902. This class—partially manufactured materials for use in manufacturing—had never but once reached $100,000,000 in the earlier years of our commerce. The total importations of materials for use in manufacturing in 1903 amounted to $480,828,386, against $415,151,874 in 1902, and formed 47.7 per cent of the total imports for consumption in 1903, against 46.1 per cent in 1902.

IRON AND STEEL IMPORTATIONS AND EXPORTATIONS.

A striking evidence of the unusual activity of the home market and unparalleled demand for manufactures of iron and steel in the domestic industries is found in the fact that although the domestic production of iron and steel in 1902 exceeded that of any earlier years, the importations of iron and steel in 1903 were nearly double those of 1902, three times as great as in 1901, and were larger than in any year since 1891. The total value of iron and steel importations, not including ore, was $51,617,312, against $27,180,247 in 1902, and $17,874,789 in 1901. Domestic production of pig iron in 1902 exceeded that of any preceding year by more than $2,000,000, and that of steel also exceeded that of any preceding year by more than $1,000,000; yet despite this increase in the domestic production of iron and steel and the increase above noted in the importation of iron and steel, the exports of manufactures of iron and steel in 1903 fell $1,910,095 below those of 1902, and $25,270,081 below those of 1900. The principal increase in iron and steel importations was in the class of partially manufactured material used in manufacturing. Pig iron increased from $3,367,172 in value in 1902 to $16,830,592 in 1903; scrap iron and steel for remanufacture increased from $768,753 in 1902 to $2,027,049 in 1903; railway bars from $371,452 in 1902 to $2,866,397 in 1903, and ingots, blooms, slabs, billets, and bars from $3,506,375 in 1902 to $9,834,236 in 1903. The table which follows shows the total value of iron and steel imports and exports from 1880 to 1903:

TIN PLATE IMPORTS AND MANUFACTURES.

The one important class of iron and steel manufactures which did not show an increase was that of tin plates. The total value of tin plates, terne plates, and taggers tin imported in 1903 was $3,209,915, against $6,065,624 in 1902, and $3,770,062 in 1901; in both quantity and value the figures of imports of tin plate in 1903 fell much below those of 1902. The table which follows shows the importation and domestic production of tin plate from 1889 to 1903:

EXPORTATIONS AND IMPORTATIONS BY PRINCIPAL COUNTRIES AND GRAND DIVISIONS.

The exportations of the year show a satisfactory growth, especially in view of the unusual home demand already noted as evidenced by the unusual activity of the great manufacturing industries and their demand for materials for use in manufacturing. Agricultural products show an increased exportation of $21,857,260, those of manufactures an increase of $3,884,758, and the total domestic exports exceeded those of last year by $36,749,441, and were larger than those of any preceding year except 1901. This growth was general, and occurs in the commerce of nearly all countries and grand divisions of the world. To Europe the total was greater than in any preceding year except 1901; to North America greater than in any preceding year; to South America greater than in any preceding year except 1901; to Africa greater than in any preceding year; to Asia greater than in any preceding year except 1900 and 1902, and to Oceania greater than in any preceding year except 1900. To Asia the exports show a reduction of $5,585,051 compared with 1902, chiefly due to the fact that the exports to Asia in 1902 were abnormally large by reason of the shortage in the supply of foreign goods resulting from the war period of 1901 and the reduced imports of that year. To Oceania the exports of the year are $37,468,512, against $34,258,041 in 1902. To Japan the exports of 1903 are $20,933,692, against $21,485,883 in 1902, this slight reduction being due to the fact that Japan is now purchasing a larger share of her cotton from India than formerly, and has therefore reduced materially her importation of raw cotton from the United States. The total exportation of raw cotton from the United States to Japan in the fiscal year 1903 was 76,413,291 pounds, against 89,252,696 pounds in 1902, while the official reports of the Japanese Government show a marked increase in Japan's imports of raw cotton from India and a decrease in those from the United States. Aside from raw cotton the exports from the United States to Japan show a gratifying growth, and in the first half of the calendar year 1903 Japan's total imports from the United States for the first time exceeded in value her imports from the United Kingdom.

In manufactures the export record of the year shows an increase in a very large proportion of the various articles and classes. Agricultural implements show an increase of $4,719,882; leather and manufactures of, $1,819,066; scientific instruments, $1,741,032; wood manufactures, $1,453,561, while books and maps, brass manufactures, cars and carriages, chemicals, cotton, vegetable fibers, glass and glassware, gunpowder and other explosives, india rubber manufactures, paints and pigments, paraffin, soap, and wool manufactures also show in each case an increase. Iron and steel show a decrease, as already indicated, due to the excessive home demand for iron and steel and its manufactures in the domestic industries. Mineral oils show a decrease of $5,294,370, due in part to the increased domestic use of oil for fuel, as well as for other purposes, and to the active rivalry of the mineral oils produced in other parts of the world.

To practically every country of Europe the exports of 1903 were greater than in 1902. This was especially true in the case of those countries whose trade relations with the United States have been the subject of much discussion. To Germany the exports were $193,841,636, against $173,148,280 in 1902; to Russia in Europe the exports of 1903 were $16,169,262, against $9,302,359 in 1902 and $8,084,228 in 1901. The imports from these countries also show a marked increase. Those from Germany in 1903 were $119,772,511, against $101,997,523 in 1902; and from Russia $9,234,739 in 1903, against $7,308,403 in 1902.

The following tables show the domestic exports of the United States, by great classes, and the imports and exports, by grand divisions, from 1870 to 1903, and the percentage which each supplied of the imports and received of the exports in each year for the period named.

COTTON EXPORTS IN 1903 COMPARED WITH PRECEDING YEARS.

Cotton formed the largest single item in the value of exports in the fiscal year 1903, and also shows a larger total in value than in any preceding year in the history of our foreign commerce. The total value of cotton exported in 1903 was $316,180,429, and including all products of cotton—cotton manufactures, cotton-seed oil, oil cake, and cotton seed—was $376,758,048, or more than $1,000,000 per day during the entire year. Of raw cotton alone the total had never reached $300,000,000 in value until 1901, when the total was $313,673,443; in 1903 it was, as above stated, $316,180,429. In quantity the exports of 1903 fell materially below those of 1898 and 1899, but the higher prices of 1903 brought the total value of raw cotton exported to the highest figure in the history of our export trade. In cotton manufactures the exports of the year also exceeded in value those of any preceding year, were double those of 1896, and were more than three times those of 1890. The table which follows shows the value of cotton exports in 1903 compared with earlier years of high record:

TRADE RELATIONS WITH THE NONCONTIGUOUS TERRITORIES OF THE UNITED STATES.

The trade relations with the noncontiguous territories of the United States have been, during the past year, for the first time fully and definitely recorded. The enactment by Congress, in 1902, upon the recommendation of the Bureau of Statistics, of a law requiring persons engaged in commerce with the noncontiguous territories of the United States to present reports similar to those required in commerce with foreign countries, has enabled an accurate measurement to be made of the quantity and value of merchandise being forwarded to and received from each of the territories in question. These reports show that the commerce with the noncontiguous territories, including in that term Alaska, Porto Rico, the Hawaiian and Philippine Islands, Guam, and Tutuila of the Samoan group, aggregated $100,000,000 in the fiscal year 1903, including about $5,000,000 of gold produced from the mines of Alaska and received in the United States from that territory. To Alaska the total shipments of the year were $9,497,721, and from Alaska the receipts of merchandise were $10,228,069, and of domestic gold, $4,719,579. This being the first year in which an official record of the shipments to and receipts from Alaska was made, no comparison can be had with official statistics of earlier years. From Alaska the principal articles of merchandise received were canned salmon, $8,410,931; other fish, $674,658, and furs and fur skins, $423,606; of the shipments to Alaska the principal items were iron and steel manufactures, $2,311,678; provisions, $969,773; wood and manufactures thereof, $692,814, and tin and manufactures thereof, $420,316.

To the Hawaiian Islands the shipments of merchandise aggregated $10,840,472, against $13,509,148 in 1900, the latest year in which an official record is available. From the Hawaiian Islands the receipts of merchandise were $26,242,868 in value, against $24,730,060 in the preceding year. Sugar formed the principal item in the merchandise received from the Hawaiian Islands, being $25,310,684, out of a total of $26,242,868. The shipments to the Hawaiian Islands included merchandise of all classes, the largest items being breadstuffs, $1,456,571; iron and steel manufactures, $1,149,505; cotton manufactures, $1,022,116, and manufactures of wood, $815,290.

To Porto Rico the shipments were larger than in any preceding year, being $12,246,225, against $10,882,653 in the preceding year; while the receipts of merchandise from Porto Rico were $11,057,195, against $8,378,766 in the preceding year. Of the merchandise received from Porto Rico, the largest item was sugar and molasses, $7,847,558, and tobacco, $1,890,391. Of the shipments to Porto Rico, the principal items were cotton manufactures, $2,044,470; provisions, $1,463,121; breadstuffs, $1,185,313, and iron and steel manufactures, $1,434,350.

To the Philippine Islands the exports of the year amounted to $4,039,909, of which the largest items were iron and steel manufactures, $657,354; provisions, $127,936; mineral oils, $265,624; cotton manufactures, $316,570, and breadstuffs, $278,891. From the Philippine Islands the value of the merchandise received was $11,372,584, against $6,612,700 in 1902 (of which $10,931,186 was manila hemp, against $6,318,470 in 1902).

The tables which follow show the commerce of the United States with Porto Rico and the Hawaiian and Philippine Islands for a term of years:

IMPORTATION OF TROPICAL PRODUCTS.

The growing dependence of the United States upon the Tropics for articles for food and for use in manufacturing is again illustrated by the fiscal year 1903. A larger quantity of sugar was brought into the United States in 1903 than in any year of our history, and an unusually large proportion was cane sugar of tropical production. The total amount of cane sugar brought into the United States during the year, including that from the Hawaiian and Philippine Islands, was 5,076,604,049 pounds, of which the Hawaiian Islands contributed 774,825,420 pounds, the Philippine Islands 18,773,333 pounds, and Porto Rico 226,143,508 pounds. In many articles of tropical production the imports of 1903 exceeded those of earlier years.

The table which follows shows the value of articles of the imports of tropical and subtropical production in order of magnitude in 1903, compared with earlier years:

[b] Does not include articles from Hawaii and Porto Rico.

The figures in the above table do not include articles received from Hawaii and Porto Rico during the years 1902 and 1903, those islands being now customs districts of the United States, and therefore merchandise from them is not considered as imports into the United States. The principal article of tropical production received from Porto Rico and the Hawaiian Islands is sugar, of which the quantity received from Porto Rico in 1902 was 183,817,049 pounds, valued at $7,999,853; from Hawaii, 720,553,357 pounds, valued at $24,147,884; in 1903, from Porto Rico, 226,143,508 pounds, valued at $10,741,533; from Hawaii, 774,825,420 pounds, valued at $25,665,738.

While the table shows a large increase in the value of tropical and subtropical products imported, the actual growth can be better determined by an examination of the quantities of the various articles imported. In a large proportion of the cases prices have greatly decreased, and consequently the figures of values do not show the real growth. Sugar, for example, shows a comparatively small increase in value during the period from 1870 to 1903, while the quantity shows a very large increase, and this is true in a less degree of other articles.

The table which follows shows the quantities of principal articles of tropical and subtropical growth imported at quinquennial periods from 1870 to 1900, and in 1902 and 1903:

INTERNAL COMMERCE.

The collection and publication of statistics of domestic trade have been continued throughout the year under review in the form of the Monthly Summary of Internal Commerce. Chambers of commerce, transportation companies, publicists, librarians, and teachers and students in institutions of learning are yearly increasing their requests for definite information on the subject of the development of domestic commerce by land and by water.

It is estimated that the internal commerce of the United States now annually amounts in value to at least $20,000,000,000. This estimate is based on one transaction in each of the leading classes of commodities produced in the several different divisions of national industry. On the basis of the figures of the Twelfth Census the products of agriculture are valued at nearly $4,000,000,000; manufactures, $13,000,000,000; minerals $1,000,000,000. To these the products of the forests, of fisheries, and other minor forms of industry should be added at a valuation of certainly not less than $3,000,000,000. Including also the growth of commerce since 1900, there can be no doubt as to the aggregate for 1902 being fully $20,000,000,000.

REPRESENTATIVE MOVEMENTS OF STAPLE COMMODITIES.

The movement of staple commodities, in the absence of any complete statement of the volume of domestic trade, affords possibly the most satisfactory index to growth or decline in the course of trade. The commodities which have been the subject of statistical returns include live-stock receipts at the leading markets, the grain movements at the interior and at the seaboard, lake traffic, lumber movements from the great areas of production, including the East, the South, the Lake shores, and the Pacific coast, the coal trade by land and by water, the cotton crop movement, and the course of the export and import movements in these staples as they affect the operations of domestic commerce.

Among the commercial activities for which statistical information is in constant use is that of live-stock trade. These returns are made by the stock-yards authorities at several of the foremost markets and are presented in such a way as to show not only the relative importance of the markets but also the comparative quantities which enter into traffic in succeeding periods. The table below gives the figures for five principal markets for 1902, compared with the corresponding figures for 1901 and 1900.

The results of the effort to get statistics of lake trade have proved the practicability of the collection of classified statistics through the aid of the collectors of customs, especially where the traffic consists largely of a few leading kinds of commodities. In the trade of the Lakes the tonnage is largely made up of iron ore, coal, grain, lumber and logs, and package freight. For the year 1902 the receipts at lake ports reporting amounted, when reduced to a tonnage basis, to 54,074,729 net tons. The table given below indicates the comparative growth or decline of the several leading items in lake commerce.

Among the developments in domestic trade, extending through the year 1902, is increased competition for the distribution of grain in particular and freight in general from the interior to the seaboard. The two lines of development along which most gains have been made are those of Canadian traffic by way of the St. Lawrence and the Lakes, and the lines leading from the Central States to the Gulf of Mexico. These two movements have their basis in the rapid expansion of grain territory. The increase of grain traffic by way of the St. Lawrence arises largely from the northwestward extension of the grain area over territory which is naturally to be regarded as commercially tributary to Canadian railway lines. In the southwest a similar extension of grain-raising territory has taken place, and as a consequence the distance to the seaboard has been shortened by way of the Gulf. This gives the trunk lines to the Atlantic seaboard diminishing quantity of grain to carry unless they choose to lower their rates sufficiently to withdraw it from the shorter lines of shipment to reach the seaboard. Partly, at least, as a consequence of this southwestward shifting of grain-growing territory, the South Atlantic ports, including Baltimore and Newport News, have improved their position as grain carriers to the Atlantic seaboard. The status of the several domestic ports reporting for the years 1901 and 1902 is given in the table following.

TYPICAL MOVEMENTS IN THE COASTING TRADE.

Coastwise coal shipments constitutes one of the chief features of the coasting trade. For the year 1902 reports of coal companies show this particular movement to have amounted to 16,210,318 tons. But for the prolonged anthracite coal strike it is known that this quantity would have been greatly increased. Of this quantity over ten million tons were reported as having been shipped to the port of New York, nearly three millions from Philadelphia, nearly two millions from Baltimore, and nearly one and a half millions from Newport News.

These figures have attracted the attention of persons interested in the domestic coal trade, and are now furnished gladly by the individual carriers for the information which they get as to the coal trade generally.

In the coasting trade there are three important lines of commerce to be covered. These are (1) the merchandise trade between New York and New England, (2) that between the North Atlantic and the South Atlantic and Gulf ports, and (3) the coal and lumber traffic. The first of these is given below for regular coasting lines only.

Among South Atlantic movements of coasting trade the lines converging at the opening of the Chesapeake Bay are the most important. The tonnage received and shipped at Norfolk and Newport News is somewhat larger than by way of the Sound between New York and New England ports, only regular steamer lines reporting.

PROGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES IN ITS MATERIAL INDUSTRIES.

The accompanying series of tables, entitled "Progress of the United States in its material industries," has been prepared with the purpose of showing the development in the principal industries and business enterprises of the United States during the century, and for the further purpose of providing a ready answer to the numerous inquiries which reach the Bureau of Statistics upon this subject. The rapid progress in production, manufacture, and distribution of the great articles entering into internal and foreign commerce, the large increase in the amount of money in circulation and deposits in banks of various classes, the great increase in imports and exports of the principal articles which enter into our foreign commerce, and the rapid enlargement of production in agriculture, manufacture, and mining have led to unexampled demands upon the Bureau for information upon these subjects. In the tables which follow the statistics of area, population, wealth, public debt, and interest charge, gold and silver produced, coined, and in circulation, bank deposits, foreign commerce, production of agriculture, farm animals, the principal cereals, minerals, and manufactures are shown, at decennial periods from 1800 to 1900, and annually, where possible, from 1850 to 1903. These figures, covering the century by decades and the last half of the century by yearly statements regarding more than 100 articles or groups of articles, present to the eye a picture of the general development of the United States and offer ready facility for determining conditions in any of these great factors at any given date that may be desired.

[a] Fiscal year ended September 30 prior to 1843; since that date ended June 30.
[b] Specie included with merchandise prior to 1821.
[c] Gold and silver can not be separately stated prior to 1864, but it is probable that the greater portion of the exports was gold.

NOTE.—Merchandise and specie are combined in the columns at right of table for the purpose of showing the total inward and outward movement of values by years.

COMMERCIAL CONDITIONS OF THE UNITED STATES COMPARED WITH THOSE OF OTHER PARTS OF THE WORLD.

Comparing conditions in the United States with those of other parts of the world, it may be said that the United States has enjoyed its full share of the prosperity of the year. A comparison of the figures of our own commerce in the fiscal year 1903 with that of other countries is difficult, owing to the fact that the fiscal years of other governments in many cases do not correspond with that of the United States, and also to the delay in obtaining figures of the imports and exports for recent periods. The tables following (pp. 65–70) show the imports and exports and the financial condition of the principal commercial countries of the world at the latest available date, and furnish a most satisfactory means of comparing commercial conditions in the United States with those of other countries of the world.

AREA AND POPULATION OF THE PRINCIPAL COUNTRIES OF THE WORLD, THEIR TOTAL FOREIGN COMMERCE AND COMMERCE WITH THE UNITED STATES; ALSO THEIR REVENUE, EXPENDITURE, INDEBTEDNESS, CURRENCY, STOCKS OF MONEY, AND PER CAPITA COMMERCE, INDEBTEDNESS, CURRENCY, ETC.
